

Ysgol Bro Alun, Gwersyllt

Architects recommend Boyco cloakroom fittings and anti-drip worktops in supply-and-fit contract for North Wales school.

Working with someone new can be a daunting prospect. But when the architect does their research and specifies your products, and the contractor comments on a 'positive' experience, the future looks bright.

Boyco were commissioned to supply and install cloakroom fittings and Waterfall® anti-drip worktops for a two-classroom extension at Bro Alun primary school in North Wales. The results are impressive.

Client: Wrexham County Borough Council
Architect: Lawray Architects
Contractor: Read Construction

"I was really impressed with the scheme and the furniture installed. Read Construction also said how positive it was working with Boyco."

Fit For Purpose

"The architect had never used us before, but was keen to specify our products, which was very pleasing," said Boyco Regional Manager Kevin Bond, explaining the background to our project to supply and fit coat hooks and bag trays, and anti-drip worktops for a two-classroom extension at Ysgol Bro Alun in Gwersyllt.

The made-to-measure cloakroom fittings were fully assembled when delivered, meaning less time spent on site for installation. They were available in the school's colours, and came with a lifetime guarantee, as well as having an anti-microbial finish.

Adding Value

The project took just four months from initial enquiry to handover. As well as the architect's own research, our early collaboration with stakeholders (including the school headmaster) to discuss the project and review samples helped avoid potential issues.

The initial site survey also identified opportunities for Boyco to add value, based on our considerable experience and deep understanding of the education sector. Initially tasked with supplying our Waterfall® laminate worktops, which have a 'bull-nosed' edge to prevent spills and drips, we proposed incorporating a handwash basin into the scope of works to avoid potentially expensive design changes and/or retro fitting.

Since the successful completion of the project, Boyco have been added to Read Construction's approved supplier list.
